B. Business Overview

The information (including graphs and tabular data) set forth under the headings “Business Review” on pages 6 to 44, “Financial Statements–Notes to the Financial Statements–Note 6–Segment information” on pages 94 to 95 and “Statements of competitive position” on the inside front cover of the Company’s “Annual Report and Form 20-F Information 2005” furnished as an exhibit to its Report on Form 6-K dated March 13, 2006 is incorporated herein by reference.

On February 14, 2006, the Company announced that it had decided to withdraw the anticoagulant Exanta™ (melagatran / ximelagatran) from the market and terminate its development. The Company estimated that approximately 400 patients were being prescribed the drug for short-term prevention of venous thromboembolism (VTE) following orthopaedic surgery (OS). Two ongoing Exanta™ clinical trials will be discontinued and Exanta™-treated patients switched to other treatments. It is important that patients do not stop Exanta™ treatment without consulting their doctor. Regulatory files in OS and other indications in the US, Europe and elsewhere will now be withdrawn.

The withdrawal of Exanta™ was triggered by new patient safety data (an adverse event report of serious liver injury) in the EXTEND clinical trial. The trial examined use of Exanta™ in extended VTE prophylaxis in OS up to 35 days post-operatively, and so involved a longer duration of therapy than that approved for marketing. Liver findings had previously been observed during clinical trials of chronic use as referred to in the prescribing information. This new patient report indicated a potential risk of severe liver injury, with an observation of rapid onset of signs and symptoms in the weeks following the end of the 35 days treatment. This specific observation had not previously been made in relation to Exanta™ and indicated that regular liver function monitoring may not mitigate the possible risk. While there was no evidence of a risk of liver injury with approved use up to 11 days, any unapproved use beyond 11 days was a concern. Therefore, in the interests of patient safety, the Company took the precautionary measure of withdrawing Exanta™. The Company has informed regulatory authorities of its decision to withdraw Exanta™ and is now communicating with all prescribers and healthcare professionals to advise them that no new patients should be started on Exanta™.

Following issuance of the decision that the Toprol-XL™ patents are invalid and unenforceable (discussed under the heading "Financial Statements–Notes to the Financial Statements–Note 25–Commitments and contingent liabilities" on pages 123 to 124 of the Company's "Annual Report and 20-F Information 2005" furnished as an exhibit to its Report on Form 6-K dated March 13, 2006), AstraZeneca has been served with several putative class action complaints filed in the US District Court for the District of Delaware, and one such action filed in the US District Court for the District of Massachusetts, alleging that AstraZeneca monopolized the market for metoprolol succinate by filing patent litigation against KV, Andrx and Eon asserting invalid and unenforceable patents in violation of US anti-trust laws. The complaints include those by plaintiffs purporting to represent the class of distributors who purchased Toprol-XL™ directly from AstraZeneca at supra-competitive prices; those by plaintiffs purporting to represent the class of consumers who are indirect purchasers of Toprol-XL™ at allegedly supra-competitive prices; and those by plaintiffs purporting to represent the class of third party payers who paid supra-competitive prices for Toprol-XL™. AstraZeneca has appealed the underlying judgment that the patents are invalid and unenforceable to the US Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit. AstraZeneca also denies the allegations of the anti-trust complaints and will vigorously defend them.

AstraZeneca continues to present certain items as exceptional under IFRS and disclose earnings per share both before and after these items. Items are regarded as exceptional when they are unusual and/or of a non-recurring nature. Such items are so identified when, in the opinion of the Directors, their separate classification is necessary in order for the reader to understand the results of the business fully. There were no such items in 2005.

The information set out in these accounts does not constitute the company's statutory accounts under the U.K. Companies Acts for the years ended 31 December 2005, 2004 or 2003. Those accounts have been reported on by the company's auditors; their reports were unqualified and did not contain a statement under section 237(2) or (3) of the Companies Act 1985. The accounts for 2004 and 2003 have been delivered to the registrar of companies and those for 2005 will be delivered in due course.
